

The war above

The lion up above yells a great roar,
As the sky begins crying, he yells once more.
Their children below know what's bound to arouse
They hurriedly rush away in hopes to not drown.
The sky cries harder as the lion starts to hit,
The blood of the sky causes light to emit.
The harsh crashes fill their ears,
The fight above will haunt them for years.
As lighting spills from the clouds,
It causes the earth's ground to shake around.
Rocks and gravel crumble and break,
Screaming and crying fills the dead space.
Their children are caught between the war above,
They are utterly scared of what's to come.
Angry hands threaten everyone around,
it's known that violence will surely arouse.
A fight so angry,
A fight so loud,
Causes the earth's trees to fall down.
Is it human nature to cause harm to those around?
To want chaos to surround?
Here comes the ocean knocking on the door,
Furious and angry due to the loud roar.
Violent waves crash against the shore,
The Lion above yells louder than before.

Sea water collides with the sky's tears,
it seems these gloomy clouds won't disappear.
The trees and homes upon the land,
Will soon no longer stand.
Why must the war continue at once?
When all they've done is cause harm to loved ones.
It seems judgments are clouded and emotions are high,
As no one sees the children cry.
They understand they can't stop the war,
As they are only young and can't do much more.
They are out of reach and can't help the sky,
All they can do is run and hide,
Well wishing for better times.

Faulty Wiring

I stand here next to you;
My thoughts are all over the place,
I'm confused about what I should do.
There was nothing in my code to have feelings for you
The feeling of your eyes burn against my skin;
Your bubbling laughter makes me fall in love again.
There's an error in my code that messes with my feelings,
About my thoughts over you.
I've never been in a relationship before,
But one with you makes me feel a sense of doom-
A dread that shouldn't be happening.
I like you and you feel the same,
But the utterance of my name besides yours,
Makes me feel upset in a way.
I shouldn't be feeling so much pain,
I should be ecstatic,
I should be equally in love with you,
But there's something wrong with me.
Am I truly human if I cannot love?
Maybe I just need a new brain,
Maybe you should leave,
Find someone who can feel the same way.
Someone without a faulty wired brain.
You deserve someone who can love you;
I'll just leave you heartbroken and in disarray.

As I am not a human,
I am not one of gods,
I am everything but someone you should love.
You always look me in the eye,
You hang on to every word of mine,
You even care of what I do in my free time.
You are the perfect guy,
But you're in love with an AI.
A being made up of a motherboard and binary code lines,
Someone who can't understand why her heart breaks every time,
You have that soft look in your eyes.
I can't allow you to follow your heart this time.
As I know I will only lead you to your demise.
If you know what's best you would certainly leave me behind;
As you should know, robots were not made with love in mind.

Home

Stranded in a distant land,
Nowhere to go.
Feeling your warm arms
Was the first time I've ever felt at home.
When the sun rises
And beauty fills the sky
I look over to see you
Lost in sunlight.
A cold breeze cuts through the air,
A pink rises to your checks.
A sight so homey,
My heart decides to cease beating.
I feel lost under your gaze.
I'm struggling to stay afloat,
In this world which we call our home.
To start somewhere new
To no longer belong
Sounds like a distant song,
which I can faintly recall.
We fell from the heavens above,
to the earth below,
We hit the ground with a soft blow.
Here we are new,
Here we are unknown,
This place is better than what we've ever known.

As we are stranded within the cold,

I'm glad I'm not alone.

With you by my side I feel at ease

I'm glad you're Adam to my Eve.